

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Farewells-to-Summer.

Prize dashes of crimson are gleaming below; The shades overhead are with splendor glow; While the crispness of autumn is in the air, And "farewells-to-summer" are everywhere!

In purple and blue, in yellow and white, They wave us adieu as we pass out of sight; Ah, waking dear memories, softly they tell— Their farewells to summer—farewell! farewell!

The rose leaves the soft summer sunshine and air, But these patiently wait till autumn is here, Then scatter their loveliness wherever they dwell— Farewell to summer, farewell! farewell!

The message they give as they nod us good-bye, Is one they have learned looking up to the sky; Ah! the heart of the hopeful fears not to tell— Its farewells to summer, farewell! farewell!

—Mrs. S. O'H. Dickson, in October Pilgrim

Invitations Issued.

Invitations will be issued this week by Mrs. John R. Cooke, of No. 3 South Third Street, for the wedding celebration of her daughter, Nancy Gordon, to Mr. Stafford H. Parker, also of Richmond.

The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride Tuesday, October 24th, at 6 P. M., the Rev. Landon T. Mason, of Grace Episcopal Church, and the Rev. Lindsay Patton to be the celebrants.

The announcement is one of the most interesting of the autumn, the contracting parties having always been prominent and extremely popular in the social circles of Richmond. Miss Cooke is the daughter of the late General John R. Cooke and the great-granddaughter of General Hugh Mercer, to whose memory a statue is about to be erected in his native city, Fredericksburg, Va. She is possessed in her own right of many qualities that render young Virginia womanhood so naturally and charmingly attractive. Mr. Parker is associated in business with the American National Bank, and is the son of a physician, who is remembered in Richmond, where he spent his professional life, with the greatest love and esteem. He is connected to a family famous in the history of the State.

Mr. Stribling was formerly of Pendleton, S. C., but belongs to the old Virginia family of that name. He is now with the Virginia Passenger and Power Company, and after November 1st, he and his bride will reside at Barton Heights.

Other Weddings of Interest.

Cabaniss, of Danville, Va., and the present manager of the Wakefield branch of the American Cigar Company in Petersburg.

Miss Knox and her father lived in Richmond until their removal to Petersburg about a year ago. The ceremony will take place at No. 1294 Park avenue, this city, the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. Conway Knox, at 4 o'clock this afternoon to-day, and will be largely attended by the many friends and relatives of the contracting parties.

R. C. Cooke, will be wedded to Mr. Forney Johnston, son of former Governor and Mrs. Joseph F. Johnston, of Birmingham, Ala. The Rev. Braxton Bryan officiating at the ceremony, which will be held in the beautiful chapel of the Centenary Methodist church, Richmond, will be the scene of the marriage of Miss Marian Cottrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. ## AUTUMN.

By ALICE CARY.

Other selections from this author, her portrait, autograph and biographical sketch, have already been printed in this series.

Shorter and shorter now the twilight elips
The days, as though the sunset gates they crowd,
And summer from her golden collar slips
And strays through stubble-fields, and moans aloud.

Save when by fits the warmer air deceives,
And, stealing hopeful to some sheltered bower,
She lies on pillows of the yellow leaves
And tries the old times over for an hour.

The wind, whose tender whisper in the May
Set all the young blossoms listening through the grove,
Sits rustling in the faded boughs to-day,
And makes his cold and unsuccessful love.

The rose has taken off her tire of red—
The mullen-stalk its yellow stars has lost,
And the proud meadow-pink hangs down her head
Against earth's chilly bosom, witched with frost.

The robin, that was busy all the June,
Before the sun had kissed the topmost bough,
Catching our hearts up in his golden tune,
Has given place to the brown cricket now.

The very cock crows lonesomely at morn—
Each flag and fern the shrinking stream divides—
Uneasy cattle low, and lambs forlorn
Creep to their straggly sheds with nettled sides.

Shut up the door: who loves me must not look
Upon the withered world, but haste to bring
His lighted candle, and his story-book,
And live with me the poetry of Spring.

This series began in The Times-Dispatch Sunday, October 22, 1902. One is published each day.

ing. The celebration will be one of the prettiest of the week.

THIS is the time of year when hundreds are busy at work planning out the comforts of the home for the fall and winter. Already we've had a great many people here laying aside various articles that will help make their households bright and attractive during the coming days of indoor living.

Those who have been here have found us better prepared than ever before to care for them satisfactorily in every way. The variety, the largeness of our assortment, our lowest prices (always marked in plain figures) and the convenient features of our dealing with the public, whereby we allow them the privilege of a charge account, all appealed most favorably to the early fall home makers.

ROYAL ENEMY OF THE CHRISTIANS IS DEAD

Sorrowful Intelligence of the Passing of King of Yaruba Country.

The king of the Yaruba country is dead. This sorrowful news is contained in a letter received at the Baptist Foreign Mission Board from one of its missionaries stationed at Ayyaw, Logos, West Africa.

The king of the Yaruba country had ruled some thirty years and his reign is described as "prosperous," though scarcely most favorable to the Christians who had made but little headway under his healthful regime. Idolatry says the letter, is so interwoven with the national, political and social life of the Yaruba people that the progress of the mission work has been very slow.

The death of the king, however, is expected to bring about a change. The African monarch has been succeeded by Lawon, the son of a former king, his own son having to leave the town according to a native custom. The present king has been an exile at Ibadan for thirty years, and for the past ten years has been in contact with British influences, which circumstances is expected to result in a greater measure of freedom to the people. About 150 native Christians united in a visit to the new king who received them most cordially and promised to do all in his power to assist their efforts to evangelize his people.
